I have already moved my account offshore where, for the time being at least, you folks won't get your greasy, grasping palms on it.

I have called the NFA back in the first wave of tightening last summer and asked to speak to the very best former trader there to explain to me in detail why you people think you should interfere with many people's livelihood.

Much to my surprise (not), there are no (former) traders among any of you.
Not one of you could explain your way around a price chart.

You are busybody bureaucrats with intrusive minds.

Your stated concerns re trading are not at all the real agenda and most of us are beginning to know that.

Heaping contempt on you (which you richly deserve) doesn't persuade you so MY agenda is to expatriate, the sooner the better.

It is a desperate move but I believe you and your ilk in congress, in regulatory bodies and in most aspects of public life today are interested in one thing only: utter and complete control of every microscopic aspect of life.

You are monsters.
